Subject: Notice

Hello,

I have written to you earlier without a response or reply. In my first official letter to you I mentioned about my late client a national of your country whose relatives I cannot get in touch with but both of you have the same surname so it will be very easy to make you his official next of kin. I am compelled to do this because I would not want his Estates of my late client and his funds to be pushed into the British treasury as unclaimed inheritance.

This letter is written and intended to solicit your assistance to be presented as next of kin to my late client since you are a foreigner and only you can lay claims on this inheritance. The Governing body of the Bank has contacted me on this matter and I am yet to provide the next of kin to lay claims to the fund. Under a clear and legitimate agreement with you, I seek your consent to be presented as the next of kin so that my late client's fund will not be confiscated by the Bank and pushed into the Bank treasury as unclaimed funds.

For the sake of transparency on this matter, you are free to make immediate contact for further clarification and explanation on this matter. I will need you also to reconfirm your full names and contact telephone number to ascertain the fact that I am dealing with the right person.

Thank you very much for your anticipated acceptance while I expect your prompt response to this matter as the urgency demand.

Yours Faithfully,

Howard F. Rowland (Solicitor & Advocate)
